

CHILDREN:

The Missing Link Between Poverty and Development

Rebecca Grynspan-Mayufis

Rebecca Grynspan is Director of the Subregional Headquarters in Mexico, United Nations Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean (ECLAC). She is a member of the Task Force I on Poverty and Economic Development under the UN Millennium Project headed by Jeffrey Sachs and a member of the UN High Level Panel on Financing for Development chaired by Ernesto Zedillo. She is co-chair of the Board of Trustees of the International Food Policy Research Institute. Grynspan as well serves on the boards of the Inter-American Development Bank's Support to Woman's Leadership and Representation Program and UNICEF's Communication Award.

Grynspan studied economics and sociology at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem and holds a B.S. in economics from the University of Costa Rica as well as an M.S. in economics from Sussex University in Britain. She was Vice President of Costa Rica from 1994 to 1998. Concurrently, she was coordinating minister of the government's social and economic sectors, housing and human settlements minister, and vice minister of finance. She has held many other public and advisory positions in Costa Rica, including the most recent, president of the board of the Mortgage and Housing Bank and coordinator of national economic adjustment, poverty reduction, and pension system reform. In addition, she was a professor at the University of Costa Rica's School of Economics.

Among Grynspan's numerous publications on social and economic policy are The New-Old?-Challenges of Social Policy (in Social Management in Latin America. Innovating Focus and Experiences, Isabel Licha, ed., 2002) and The Return of Political Economics and the Central American Challenges (in Old and New Challenges for a Diverse Central America, 2002).