EARLY CHILDHOOD AND BASIC EDUCATION. The greeting cards income helped improve access to Early Childhood Care and Development (ECCD) services by increasing the number of communities served from 6,974 in 2004 to 7,133 in 2005 as part of the child friendly movement. UNICEF supported the training of ECCD workers, provision of learning materials and orientation of parents on good parenting.

HEALTH AND NUTRITION. Through its procurement services, UNICEF enabled the Department of Health to obtain almost ₱400 million worth of vaccines and related supplies for the National Expanded Programme on Immunization. This ensured the availability of adequate and high-quality vaccines for Filipino children. UNICEF also facilitated the government's procurement of anti retro-viral drugs for people living with HIV/AIDS, including children.

EDUCATION. The greeting cards income contributed to the expansion of the Child-Friendly School System (CFSS) from about 4,000 to over 5,000 schools as part of the child friendly movement. Teachers and school heads of CFSS schools were trained on effective teaching-learning approaches as well as on gender-fair, protective and health-promoting practices. The school children, parents and community members were made more aware of children's rights and encouraged to support school improvements. CFSS schools tend to fare better in terms of enhancing children's learning outcomes because the schools and the community become more nurturing of their education and development.

We are glad to help UNICEF
help Filipino children

Each one of us can make a difference in the lives of our people and the well-being of our country.

We at Globe Telecom continue to support UNICEF as it gives us an opportunity to renew our faith in the future and make great things possible for the Filipino youth.

GERARDO C. ABLAZA
President & CEO
Globe Telecom

We have always believed that we can do our share to unshackle children from the chains of poverty and exploitation. Our fight against the worst forms of child labor together with our continuous support of UNICEF and its activities in the Philippines will continue until we have significantly helped improve the living conditions of the children.

Let us continue to nurture our children as they join us towards building prosperity for the Filipino.

For a brighter future ahead of us, invest in today's youth for they are tomorrow's workers.

ARTURO D. BRION
Secretary
Department of Labor & Employment

We are very pleased as a company to be able to make a difference in the lives of children in the Philippines.

For this reason, we appreciate and support the invaluable work of UNICEF all over the world. The future of all of us depends on the next generation so let us jointly do what we can to give them a better start.

ERIK MOLLER NIELSEN
President
Maersk-Filipinas, Inc.

CHILD PROTECTION. Early this year, the Comprehensive Juvenile Justice System Bill was signed into law. The law increases the age of criminal responsibility from 9 to 15 years old, and redirects cases with children as defendants from courts to a diversion programme. UNICEF supported the policy advocacy campaign for the passage of this law and provided technical support for its drafting.
