

THE STATE OF THE WORLD'S CHILDREN 2004

FUNDING GAPS

The Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) countries have committed themselves to the target of 0.7 per cent of their gross national income (GNI) for official development assistance (ODA) to developing countries. A special sub-target commits them to a 0.15 to 0.20 per cent of GNI for aid to least developed countries.

Net official development assistance (ODA) among G-7 countries as percentage of gross national income (GNI) in 2002.

Net official development assistance (ODA) to least developed countries among G-7 countries as percentage of gross national income (GNI) in 2001.

Please note this graph has been revised to reflect the correct 0.15 GNI subtarget commitment by OECD countries.
