

UNICEF video news package English voice-over mono mix
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Running Time 	2'14
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Narrator Name 	Rachel Bonham Carter <table border="1" data-bbox="519 172 1529 1606"> <thead> <tr> <th data-bbox="519 172 1036 214">Script</th> <th data-bbox="1036 172 1529 214">Shotlist</th> </tr> </thead> <tbody> <tr> <td data-bbox="519 214 1036 1606"> Four years ago in Sudan Fatna, then aged ten, was promised to an older man for marriage. But soon after, Janjaweed militia murdered her sister and Fatna's family fled here to Eastern Chad with thousands of other refugees, all escaping the growing violence in Darfur. Since coming to the camp, Fatna has been able to attend school for the first time and see new possibilities in her future. Soundbite () Fatna, 14: "I have chosen to go to school. For me, I hope I can stay in school. This would be advantageous for me. Once I know how to read and write and everything, maybe I can become someone in a good position with a responsible job." Like many other girls in Darfur, she didn't have the opportunity to go to school. Her family moved around a lot and girls generally are expected to stay at home to do household chores. But Fatna's father now recognizes that sending her to school can benefit everybody... Soundbite () Mahamat Youssef Hassan, Fatna's father: "It's important to educate girls. If the girl goes to school she knows everything. Sometimes it's even good for the family. If a girl goes to school then she can aid her family." Girls denied their rights as children become women with daughters and granddaughters whose potential also remains unfulfilled. But here across 12 different camps in Eastern Chad almost every child is now enrolled and 65 per cent of them are girls. Families are learning the importance of ending gender discrimination. So, when Fatna and her classmates one day return to Sudan they will be able to continue their studies and seize opportunities previously denied their mothers. Ends </td> <td data-bbox="1036 214 1529 1606"> <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Med shot, Fatna in green filling water container from tap 2. Close up, Fatna in green headscarf looking down 3. Med shot, Fatna in light green and another girl walk through camp towards camera carrying UNICEF school books to enter house 4. Med shot, Fatna and another girl carry blackboard through camp 5. Soundbite () Fatna, 14: "I have chosen to go to school. For me, I hope I can stay in school. This would be advantageous for me. Once I know how to read and write and everything, maybe I can become someone in a good position with a responsible job." 6. Med shot, four young girls carry bundles of firewood on their heads 7. Med shot, Fatna at home washing her young brother in a bowl of dirty water 8. Close up, boy's feet standing in dirty water 9. Med shot, Fatna hanging laundry 10. Med shot, Fatna gardens with another girl in Blue and her father in white 11. Soundbite () Mahamat Youssef Hassan, Fatna's father: "It's important to educate girls. If the girl goes to school she knows everything. Sometimes it's even good for the family. If a girl goes to school then she can aid her family." 12. Med shot, pupils witting outside at class with hands in air at teacher 13. Med shot, young girl carries younger child on her back 14. Wide shot, group of Women walk through camp past and away from camera 15. Wide shot, pan r-l, camp classrooms 16. Med shot, teacher walks around inside circle of children 17. Med shot, pupils sitting in class, Fatna stands, camera follows her 18. Long shot, class under tree 19. Med shot, pupils sitting raised hands in the air clicking fingers at teacher 20. Close up, Fatna clapping </td> </tr> </tbody> </table>		Script	Shotlist	Four years ago in Sudan Fatna, then aged ten, was promised to an older man for marriage. But soon after, Janjaweed militia murdered her sister and Fatna's family fled here to Eastern Chad with thousands of other refugees, all escaping the growing violence in Darfur. Since coming to the camp, Fatna has been able to attend school for the first time and see new possibilities in her future. Soundbite () Fatna, 14: "I have chosen to go to school. For me, I hope I can stay in school. This would be advantageous for me. Once I know how to read and write and everything, maybe I can become someone in a good position with a responsible job." Like many other girls in Darfur, she didn't have the opportunity to go to school. Her family moved around a lot and girls generally are expected to stay at home to do household chores. But Fatna's father now recognizes that sending her to school can benefit everybody... Soundbite () Mahamat Youssef Hassan, Fatna's father: "It's important to educate girls. If the girl goes to school she knows everything. Sometimes it's even good for the family. If a girl goes to school then she can aid her family." Girls denied their rights as children become women with daughters and granddaughters whose potential also remains unfulfilled. But here across 12 different camps in Eastern Chad almost every child is now enrolled and 65 per cent of them are girls. Families are learning the importance of ending gender discrimination. So, when Fatna and her classmates one day return to Sudan they will be able to continue their studies and seize opportunities previously denied their mothers. Ends	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Med shot, Fatna in green filling water container from tap 2. Close up, Fatna in green headscarf looking down 3. Med shot, Fatna in light green and another girl walk through camp towards camera carrying UNICEF school books to enter house 4. Med shot, Fatna and another girl carry blackboard through camp 5. Soundbite () Fatna, 14: "I have chosen to go to school. For me, I hope I can stay in school. This would be advantageous for me. Once I know how to read and write and everything, maybe I can become someone in a good position with a responsible job." 6. Med shot, four young girls carry bundles of firewood on their heads 7. Med shot, Fatna at home washing her young brother in a bowl of dirty water 8. Close up, boy's feet standing in dirty water 9. Med shot, Fatna hanging laundry 10. Med shot, Fatna gardens with another girl in Blue and her father in white 11. Soundbite () Mahamat Youssef Hassan, Fatna's father: "It's important to educate girls. If the girl goes to school she knows everything. Sometimes it's even good for the family. If a girl goes to school then she can aid her family." 12. Med shot, pupils witting outside at class with hands in air at teacher 13. Med shot, young girl carries younger child on her back 14. Wide shot, group of Women walk through camp past and away from camera 15. Wide shot, pan r-l, camp classrooms 16. Med shot, teacher walks around inside circle of children 17. Med shot, pupils sitting in class, Fatna stands, camera follows her 18. Long shot, class under tree 19. Med shot, pupils sitting raised hands in the air clicking fingers at teacher 20. Close up, Fatna clapping
Script	Shotlist
Four years ago in Sudan Fatna, then aged ten, was promised to an older man for marriage. But soon after, Janjaweed militia murdered her sister and Fatna's family fled here to Eastern Chad with thousands of other refugees, all escaping the growing violence in Darfur. Since coming to the camp, Fatna has been able to attend school for the first time and see new possibilities in her future. Soundbite () Fatna, 14: "I have chosen to go to school. For me, I hope I can stay in school. This would be advantageous for me. Once I know how to read and write and everything, maybe I can become someone in a good position with a responsible job." Like many other girls in Darfur, she didn't have the opportunity to go to school. Her family moved around a lot and girls generally are expected to stay at home to do household chores. But Fatna's father now recognizes that sending her to school can benefit everybody... Soundbite () Mahamat Youssef Hassan, Fatna's father: "It's important to educate girls. If the girl goes to school she knows everything. Sometimes it's even good for the family. If a girl goes to school then she can aid her family." Girls denied their rights as children become women with daughters and granddaughters whose potential also remains unfulfilled. But here across 12 different camps in Eastern Chad almost every child is now enrolled and 65 per cent of them are girls. Families are learning the importance of ending gender discrimination. So, when Fatna and her classmates one day return to Sudan they will be able to continue their studies and seize opportunities previously denied their mothers. Ends	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Med shot, Fatna in green filling water container from tap 2. Close up, Fatna in green headscarf looking down 3. Med shot, Fatna in light green and another girl walk through camp towards camera carrying UNICEF school books to enter house 4. Med shot, Fatna and another girl carry blackboard through camp 5. Soundbite () Fatna, 14: "I have chosen to go to school. For me, I hope I can stay in school. This would be advantageous for me. Once I know how to read and write and everything, maybe I can become someone in a good position with a responsible job." 6. Med shot, four young girls carry bundles of firewood on their heads 7. Med shot, Fatna at home washing her young brother in a bowl of dirty water 8. Close up, boy's feet standing in dirty water 9. Med shot, Fatna hanging laundry 10. Med shot, Fatna gardens with another girl in Blue and her father in white 11. Soundbite () Mahamat Youssef Hassan, Fatna's father: "It's important to educate girls. If the girl goes to school she knows everything. Sometimes it's even good for the family. If a girl goes to school then she can aid her family." 12. Med shot, pupils witting outside at class with hands in air at teacher 13. Med shot, young girl carries younger child on her back 14. Wide shot, group of Women walk through camp past and away from camera 15. Wide shot, pan r-l, camp classrooms 16. Med shot, teacher walks around inside circle of children 17. Med shot, pupils sitting in class, Fatna stands, camera follows her 18. Long shot, class under tree 19. Med shot, pupils sitting raised hands in the air clicking fingers at teacher 20. Close up, Fatna clapping
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • International version split track • Running Time 	2:06
	Script	Shotlist

	Four years ago in Sudan Fatna, then aged ten, was promised to an older man for marriage. But soon after, Janjaweed militia murdered her sister and Fatna's family fled here to Eastern Chad with thousands of other refugees, all escaping the growing violence in Darfur. Since coming to the camp, Fatna has been able to attend school for the first time and see new possibilities in her future. Soundbite () Fatna, 14: "I have chosen to go to school. For me, I hope I can stay in school. This would be advantageous for me. Once I know how to read and write and everything, maybe I can become someone in a good position with a responsible job." Like many other girls in Darfur, she didn't have the opportunity to go to school. Her family moved around a lot and girls generally are expected to stay at home to do household chores. But Fatna's father now recognizes that sending her to school can benefit everybody... Soundbite ()Mahamat Youssef Hassan, Fatna's father: "It's important to educate girls. If the girl goes to school she knows everything. Sometimes it's even good for the family. If a girl goes to school then she can aid her family." Girls denied their rights as children become women with daughters and granddaughters whose potential also remains unfulfilled. But here across 12 different camps in Eastern Chad almost every child is now enrolled and 65 per cent of them are girls. Families are learning the importance of ending gender discrimination. So, when Fatna and her classmates one day return to Sudan they will be able to continue their studies and seize opportunities previously denied their mothers. Ends	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Med shot, Fatna in green filling water container from tap 2. Close up, Fatna in green headscarf looking down 3. Med shot, Fatna in light green and another girl walk through camp towards camera carrying UNICEF school books to enter house 4. Med shot, Fatna and another girl carry blackboard through camp 5. Soundbite () Fatna, 14: "I have chosen to go to school. For me, I hope I can stay in school. This would be advantageous for me. Once I know how to read and write and everything, maybe I can become someone in a good position with a responsible job." 6. Med shot, four young girls carry bundles of firewood on their heads 7. Med shot, Fatna at home washing her young brother in a bowl of dirty water 8. Close up, boy's feet standing in dirty water 9. Med shot, Fatna hanging laundry 10. Med shot, Fatna gardens with another girl in Blue and her father in white 11. Soundbite () Mahamat Youssef Hassan, Fatna's father: "It's important to educate girls. If the girl goes to school she knows everything. Sometimes it's even good for the family. If a girl goes to school then she can aid her family." 12. Med shot, pupils witting outside at class with hands in air at teacher 13. Med shot, young girl carries younger child on her back 14. Wide shot, group of Women walk through camp past and away from camera 15. Wide shot, pan r-l, camp classrooms 16. Med shot, teacher walks around inside circle of children 17. Med shot, pupils sitting in class, Fatna stands, camera follows her 18. Long shot, class under tree 19. Med shot, pupils sitting raised hands in the air clicking fingers at teacher 20. Close up, Fatna clapping
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Video news footage 1 • Running Time 	1:56
	Shotlist Med shot boys sitting in class Med shot pupils carry blackboard and other supplies past camera Med shot, teacher puts up blackboard Med shot, girls spread out blanket Close up, girl in blue headscarf

	Med shot, girls laughing with unicef school books Close up, girls in red headscarf Wide shot, pupils with hands in air Med shot, classroom from behind, girl in blue stands Med shot, classroom from the front, pupils sitting Med shot, pupils laps with unicef school books Med shot, girls at back of class, fatna in middle
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Video news footage 2 • Running Time 	1:41 Shotlist Med shot women fill water jugs from tap Med shot, woman carries blue bucket on head Med shot, Fatna's father & brothers sitting outside Close up, feet and shoes Close up, Fatna Close up, Father
French Language Version Running time:	2:01
	Script Il y a quatre ans au Soudan, Fatna, âgée alors de dix ans, a été promise en mariage à un homme d'âge mûr. Mais peu de temps après, les milices janjaweed ont assassiné sa sœur, et la famille de Fatna a fui pour se réfugier ici, dans la région orientale du Tchad, avec des milliers d'autres réfugiés qui avaient tous fui l'escalade de la violence au Darfour. Depuis son arrivée au camp, Fatna a pu, pour la première fois, aller à l'école et envisager de nouvelles possibilités pour son avenir. Voix de Fatna, 14 ans : « J'ai choisi d'aller à l'école et j'espère que je pourrai continuer. Ça va me donner des avantages. Une fois que je saurai lire, écrire et tout ça, peut-être que je

	pourrai devenir quelqu'un de bien placé, avec un poste de responsabilité. » Comme beaucoup d'autres filles au Darfour, l'occasion ne s'était pas présentée pour elle d'aller à l'école. Sa famille se déplaçait beaucoup, et l'on attend généralement des filles qu'elles restent à la maison pour s'occuper des tâches ménagères. Mais le père de Fatna reconnaît maintenant que l'envoyer à l'école peut profiter à tout le monde... Voix du père de Fatna : « Il est important de donner une éducation aux filles. Si une fille va à l'école, elle sait tout. Parfois, c'est même bon pour la famille. Si une fille va à l'école, elle peut venir en aide à sa famille. » Les filles qui se voient refuser leurs droits deviennent des femmes dont les filles et les petites-filles ne seront pas non plus à la hauteur de leur potentiel. Mais ici, dans 12 camps de la région orientale du Tchad, presque tous les enfants sont scolarisés, et 65 pour cent d'entre eux sont des filles. Les familles apprennent qu'il est important de mettre un terme à la discrimination fondée sur le sexe. Ainsi, le jour où Fatna et ses camarades retourneront au Soudan, elles pourront continuer leurs études et saisir des occasions qui n'ont pas été offertes à leur mère.
Spanish Language Version Running time:	1:53
	Script Hace cuatro años, en el Sudán, Fatna, que tenía entonces 10 años, fue prometida en matrimonio a un hombre de más edad. Pero poco después, la milicia Janjaweed asesinó a su hermana, y la familia de Fatna huyó hasta aquí, el Chad oriental, junto a otros miles de refugiados, todos los cuales escapaban de la violencia cada vez mayor desatada en Darfur. Desde que llegó al campamento, Fatna ha podido asistir a la escuela por primera vez, y ver nuevas posibilidades en su futuro. Fragmento sonoro () Fatna, 14: "He elegido ir a la escuela, y espero que pueda seguir en ella. Me traerá ventajas. Cuando sepa leer y escribir y todo lo demás, quizá pueda llegar a ser alguien con una buena posición y un trabajo de responsabilidad."

	Como muchas otras niñas de Darfur, Fatna no tuvo oportunidad de ir a la escuela. Su familia se desplazaba mucho, y en general se espera de las niñas que se queden en casa para hacer las tareas domésticas. Pero el padre de Fatna reconoce ahora que mandarla a la escuela puede beneficiar a todos... Fragmento sonoro () Padre de Fatna: “Es importante educar a las niñas. A veces es incluso bueno para la familia. Si una niña va a la escuela, entonces puede ayudar a su familia.” Las muchachas a las que, de niñas, se les niegan sus derechos, se convierten en mujeres con hijas y nietas cuyo potencial también se ve frustrado. Pero aquí, en los 12 campamentos del Chad oriental, casi todos los niños y niñas están ahora matriculados, y el 65% son niñas. Las familias están aprendiendo la importancia de acabar con la discriminación por razón de género. Por eso, cuando Fatna y sus compañeras de clase regresen algún día al Sudán, podrán continuar sus estudios y aprovechar oportunidades de las que sus madres se vieron privadas.
UNICEF PSA <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Note to NewsMarket: Always annotate PSAs running time as TRT: 30 seconds 	Script	Shotlist
UNICEF Interview Running Time	Xxx
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Name of person being interviewed 	Xxx
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Name of person's organization 	Xxx
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Person's title 	xxx
	Script	