International institutional Consultancy for technical assistance to the Institute for Social and Child Protection for developing Standard Operating Procedures and Cross-sectoral training module on working with children, victims of violence and exploitation, including delivery of training

Background and Context

Over the past two decades Montenegro has undertaken important institutional, legislative and administrative reforms to align its policies with international standards to ensure that child rights are respected and protected in accordance with the Convention on the Rights of the Child and the EU Charter of Fundamental Rights. Fundamental rights, including child rights are also a key principle of the EU enlargement process which is a national priority for Montenegro. The overall objective of UNICEF-Government of Montenegro Country Programme for 2017-2021 is to support the country’s efforts towards increasing equity and ensuring inclusion of children and women who are in need of protection, live in poverty, or are marginalized so that they can exercise their rights.

Protection of children from violence is guaranteed by Montenegro’s Constitution and is an integral part of the country’s strategies and action plans for EU accession (eg Action Plan for Chapter 23), as well as for achieving the 2030 Sustainable Development Agenda (Goal 16.3). The European Union Progress Report for Montenegro for 2019 emphasized that “Gender-based violence and violence against children remain issues of sincere concern”.¹ Violence against children is not only one of the most severe human rights violations, but has negative impact at the societal level, including large direct and indirect economic costs due to increased social spending and lost economic productivity.²

During the last decade Montenegro has devoted increased attention to improve policy, legal and institutional frameworks for adequate prevention and protection of children from violence and exploitation and promote positive social norms. As part of the Government’s efforts to ending violence against children a multi-year campaign “End Violence Against Children” was launched in 2016/7. The campaign sparked a public debate on the negative and long-lasting effects of violence for the child, family and society as a whole. Continued investments are needed to change public attitudes and perceptions towards violence against children, since the latest MICS data (2018) for Montenegro show that violence against children is still a key issue - 66% of children having experienced any form of violent discipline in the last month preceding the survey.

In 2017, Montenegro became a pathfinding country to the Global Partnership to End Violence Against Children³ and a member of the We Protect Initiative⁴ and adopted the Strategy for the Prevention and Protection of Children from Violence, which encompasses multi-sectoral interventions and sectorial support to be provided to relevant state and non-state actors, children and families so that Montenegro becomes a society free of violence against children, in which children may develop to their full potential. Moreover, the Family Law of Montenegro was amended in 2016, leading to the prohibition of all forms of violence against children including corporal punishment.

² UNICEF, 2014, Hidden in Plain Sight: A statistical analysis of violence against children. Costs resulting from the consequences of physical, psychological and sexual violence against children can be as high as $7 trillion globally.

⁴ We Protect initiative in the meantime become WE Protect Global Alliance.
Notwithstanding the well-developed policy and legal framework and important programmes initiated across the sectors, their implementation require further strengthening. Some of the major challenges are financial constraints and insufficient national capacities to mobilize and implement multi-sectoral and holistic interventions to eliminate violence against children. Weak inter-sectoral collaboration results in poorly developed preventive measures and interventions which leave children without an integrated efficient system support.

Even though the Government has been strengthening the multidisciplinary response to violence, building integrated and accessible services and changing attitudes has proven to be a long-term and demanding process. The general acceptance of violence is particularly worrisome and needs to be addressed as a matter of priority. Increasing professional capacities to detect and report cases of violence against children, recently became a key priority.

Many professionals (social workers, teachers, health workers, police officers, judicial representatives, etc.) lack the necessary knowledge, capacities and skills and standardized working procedures, which often results in poor implementation of holistic and integrated approach and underreporting and secondary victimization of children. Following the introduction of case management approach, professionals are supposed to plan, follow and monitor individual cases, including organizing of case conferences. However, the practice has not been unified yet and implementation varies across the country. The same applies to the work in multisectoral teams.

In order to help the country to implement standardised integrated and multi-sectoral work and interventions and increase capacities across the sectors in line with the Strategy on Prevention and Protection of children from violence, UNICEF will provide technical assistance to the Institute for Social and Child Protection for developing Standard Operating Procedures and a cross-sectoral training module on working with children, victims of violence and exploitation as well as organize training for a multi-sectoral group of professionals.
